The Nizamabad town is located in the North West region of Telangana State. It is one of the Municipal Corporations of the State with two international Hotels. The town is just 160km away from Hyd the capital of Telangana and is well connected with road and railway line to Hyderabad and Nanded, a city in the eastern Maharashtra. A good number of trains are run connecting Nizamabad with Vizag, Tinupati and Bhubaneswar. The perennial peninsular river, the Godavari and its major tributary the Manjeera flow along the north and the west borders of the district respectively making the entire region more alluvial fertile and evergreen. Thus, the two major irrigation water reservoirs, the Sriram Sagar Project and Nizam Sagar are built on these two rivers. The confluence of the Manjeera with the Godavari occurs at a holy place, Kandakurthy which is just 35 kilometers away from Nizamabad. Furthermore, the Gnana Saraswati temple is located on the banks of the Godavari at Basara which is 35 kilometers away from Nizamabad. The eastern and southern parts of the district are predominantly occupied with typical sub-tropical deciduous rain forests bordering the erstwhile Karimnagar and Medak districts.

Theme of the Seminar

"The Future of Public Administration: Challenges & Opportunities"

Public administration has great history from human civilisation as a practice but as an academic discipline it has about 120 years old. "Public administration is an incredibly diverse and rapidly globalizing field, including a broad range of actors with varying types and areas of expertise. Public Administration has evolutionary changes like Public policy approach, Governance, New public Management and interdisciplinary but the discipline facing many challenges in the globalising world.

In the context of globalisation public administration cease to become nation centric since it is open to various kinds of influences which are rooted elsewhere in the globe. The forces of globalization, liberalisation and the revolution in information technology have shattered many a myth hitherto held sacrosanct about the government and more specifically concerning its primary institution of governance and the public administration. Governments can no longer afford to support rigid, bureaucratic, reactive, rules driven administrative organizations rather today's administrative system ought to be flexible, consultative, result-oriented and proactive at the same time encouraging and supporting creativity and innovation from the bottom to the top in order to govern and provide services to the citizens at large.

In order to respond to the new demands the discipline needs to share off its ethno centric character. The minnow brook conferences are a stock taking exercise in this context and also an articulation of future road map for public administration in the changing socio economic and environment of globalising world.

The Pedagogy & curriculum has to meet growing requirements of the society and also useful to provide capacities to the students to compete in the employment market and also Public administration discipline should become profession mode like consultant to the government and corporate.

Both practitioners and scholars of public administration community with collective efforts, it should become not only academic but also profession field of multidisciplinary practice like law, medicine, and social work. Scholars & practitioners need to work on this endeavour. In this background, the present seminar is intended to discuss the Future of Public Administration, Challenges and Opportunities.
